Product Overview:

Why does my water have

Chemicals and Sediments :

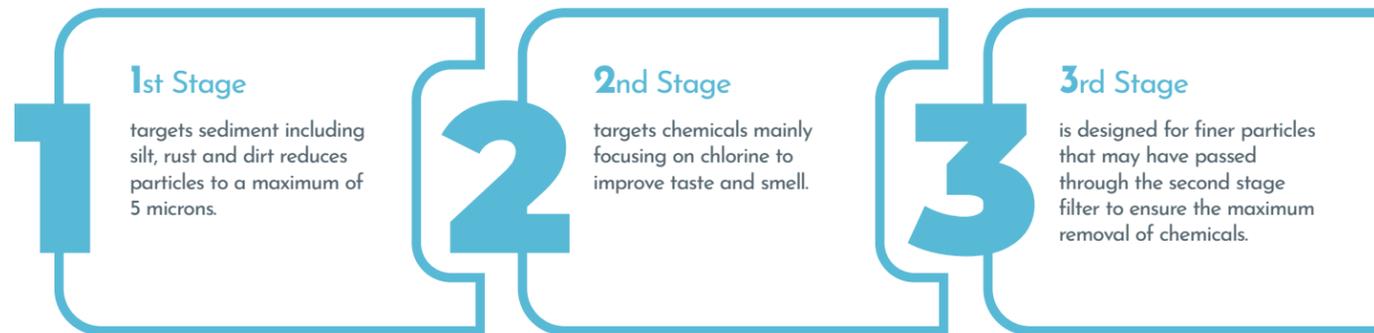

When water enters your home, it may contain various impurities, including harsh chemicals and sediments. Sediments can be introduced through pipe corrosion, water line repairs, or soil erosion. Over 30 chemicals including, chlorine, potassium permanganate, aluminum sulfate, are commonly used for disinfection, pH adjustment, and corrosion control. These chemicals are important to sustaining safe drinking water on a large scale however once the water has passed through your water meter, these chemicals are not necessary due to the reduced risk of bacterial growth.

How our

System Works :

Our filtration systems targets these impurities and chemicals through a 3 stage system:
